What's new:

2 For those with an interest in working on F03's Technical Content, here is a more technical, less "space karaoke" style fest of our cinematic dev-test. I think I've got the vocals going from here, will have fun editing for sound. Just had to put this up, it's been too long since we had a chance to discuss technical content. (First dev-test was for advertising etc.) it was kinda unusable in terms of precision, but we still wanted feedback on the production quality. This time I wanted feedback on the space area, so the actual look and feel of the location maps, the way they're constructed and how they relate to one another. This had also been asked on the forums before and I've posted on the forums before so come join us in this Studio :) Music: (auto) Xzanthrax: Progression of an Ultra Yume: Sugar UPDATE: Audio: Depending on the final game, the trade-off for the techno-sounding music will be Xzanthrax vs Yume (or other arrangements). This music would make a serious space-ground-or-very-low-turbulence battle zone. An example of Xzanthrax, but of course you can choose from the packs for CVM3 and CVM4. I've looked at downloading their only non English song. I was thinking "to include," but apparently that would be too hard to a lot of people, so here it is in English, expanded into what I believe are the beats. Also, subtle changes in sound, depending on whether you're in an environment, over a ground track (planet?) where people are walking or those things. >> Title: Upper Galaxies Song: Soul Avengerz, The Apogee Arrangements (this goes in all subsongs): 1. The Zone (Air) - 1. Intro (first beat) - 1.2. The Zone (first beat) 3. Introduction 4. The Zone (first beat) Notes: Total song length is: ~4 minutes (it's ~1:54 in the song) with over 1:50 of the song being presented in Zone. Changed the Zone sections so it doesn't start right away on beat one, because it needs to be blended in somehow, I like it in mid or late summer. Also this song has no lyrics,
